AMETHYST

Amethyst is a variety of quartz often used in jewelry or sculpture. It comes in a variety of colors, the most prized being a deep purple. The crystalline structure is achieved over millennia through a process called irradiation, where iron impurities and intense pressure cause the complex crystal lattice. Our amethyst is sourced from deep within the caves of Southern Brazil, and occurs exclusively along a specific altitude 📍

AGATE

Agate is characterized by its fine grain and bright color. It is most commonly found in volcanic rocks or ancient lavas, where silica is melted and deposited in layers upon the walls. We prize the biggest pieces and slice them as thin as possible to highlight its unparalleled beauty 🍷

GREY STONE

WEATHER WORN woods left out in the sun and rain for months at a time take on a wonderfully-aged patina. By cerusing the wood and applying a multi-step finish, we achieve a stone-like effect which preserves the rough texture and rich color of the wood.

BLACK WASH

We start with aged teak wood, exposed to the elements for months at a time. At dusk, when the lighting is just right, the wood looks dark and moody, and we've captured that patina by cerusing the wood and applying a multi-step finish. The result is a black wash over natural teak, which enhances the contrast of the grain while giving the pieces a rich finish 🍷

LYCHEE

Lychee Wood is a hardy wood that is very heavy and dense with a deep reddish color. Originally found in Southern China, the popularity of the fruit these trees bear has resulted in it becoming a prevalent species across Southeast Asia and beyond. In creating this collection, great care was taken to unearth these root systems which were compacted with stone and dirt and remove the sediment so they could be sliced into sculptural furnishings ♡

BURL

Extraordinary in every way, from its highly-figured grain to the story of how it comes to be. Burl is nature's most beautiful form of protection. When a tree experiences an unusual stress, the burl is its decades-long response. A burl is the hardest part of a tree. Its rarest and most beautiful aspect. It is often used in veneers for fine furniture, luxury car interior trims or high-end instruments. We seek out the most unusual forms and slice them into solid, generous slabs ♥

When a tree is struck by lightning, the bark is charred to a matte black. Inspired by this sharp contrast of the blackened outer edge to the natural core of these roots, we recreated this effect with a blowtorch 🔥

BOSCAGE

The Boscage Collection takes its cues from nature with organic slices of reclaimed teak wood, squared off and contained in a matte black iron frame. The word Boscage comes from the French word for forest, and inspiration for this collection comes from a cluster of trees. The edges of the teak slices are burnt by a torch and are intricately puzzled together, one piece at a time.

PETRIFIED

Our petrified wood is sourced in Indonesia along the continental fault lines where there is high volcanic activity. The wood is fossilized through a process of permineralization that takes millions of years to achieve. This “magical” process starts when a tree or forest is smothered through a natural effect—be it a massive earthquake, landslide or volcanic eruption. The lack of oxygen preserves the organic material, and over eons, rainwater and underground rivers pass through the wood, replacing the organic material with minerals. The process happens on a cellular level which preserves the wood grain, growth rings and bark.

The color of petrified wood is determined by which materials replace the organic matter. Carbon creates black. Chromium, cobalt and copper give it a green/blue hue. Iron oxides are red, brown and yellow. Manganese oxides produce pink/orange and blackish/yellow tones. Unearthing the petrified wood is only the first step. Transporting it through jungles to a suitable stonework facility had always been the challenge. We have developed our own resources to cut, carve and polish into beautiful stools, slabs and artifacts 🍷

GROTTO

Grotto is the Italian word for caves, which served as the inspiration for this evolution of our popular River Stone Collection. We've reinforced the frame so this cavity could be subtracted from the form and still maintain its rigidity. The interior finish is available in gold and silver leaf, and creates a beautiful two-tone finish for a dramatic effect 🍷

One-of-a-kind item · Style and size varies

What started as an experiment of mixing metal with wood evolved into this stunning collection of furniture and wall art. Molten aluminum and brass are carefully poured into reclaimed wood from India.

The temperature must be carefully controlled; too hot and the wood burns, too cool and the alloy doesn't distribute evenly.

The background features three distinct wooden sculptures on black stands. The leftmost sculpture is tall and slender, with a light-colored, possibly bleached wood, featuring a large, rounded, bowl-like shape at the top. The middle sculpture is a dark, richly grained wood, shaped into a dynamic, almost abstract form that resembles a reclining animal or a stylized figure. The rightmost sculpture is a dark wood, carved into a more complex, organic shape with a prominent, curved, horn-like or tail-like element at the top. The word 'SCULPTURE' is overlaid in large, bold, gold-colored letters across the center of the image.

SCULPTURE

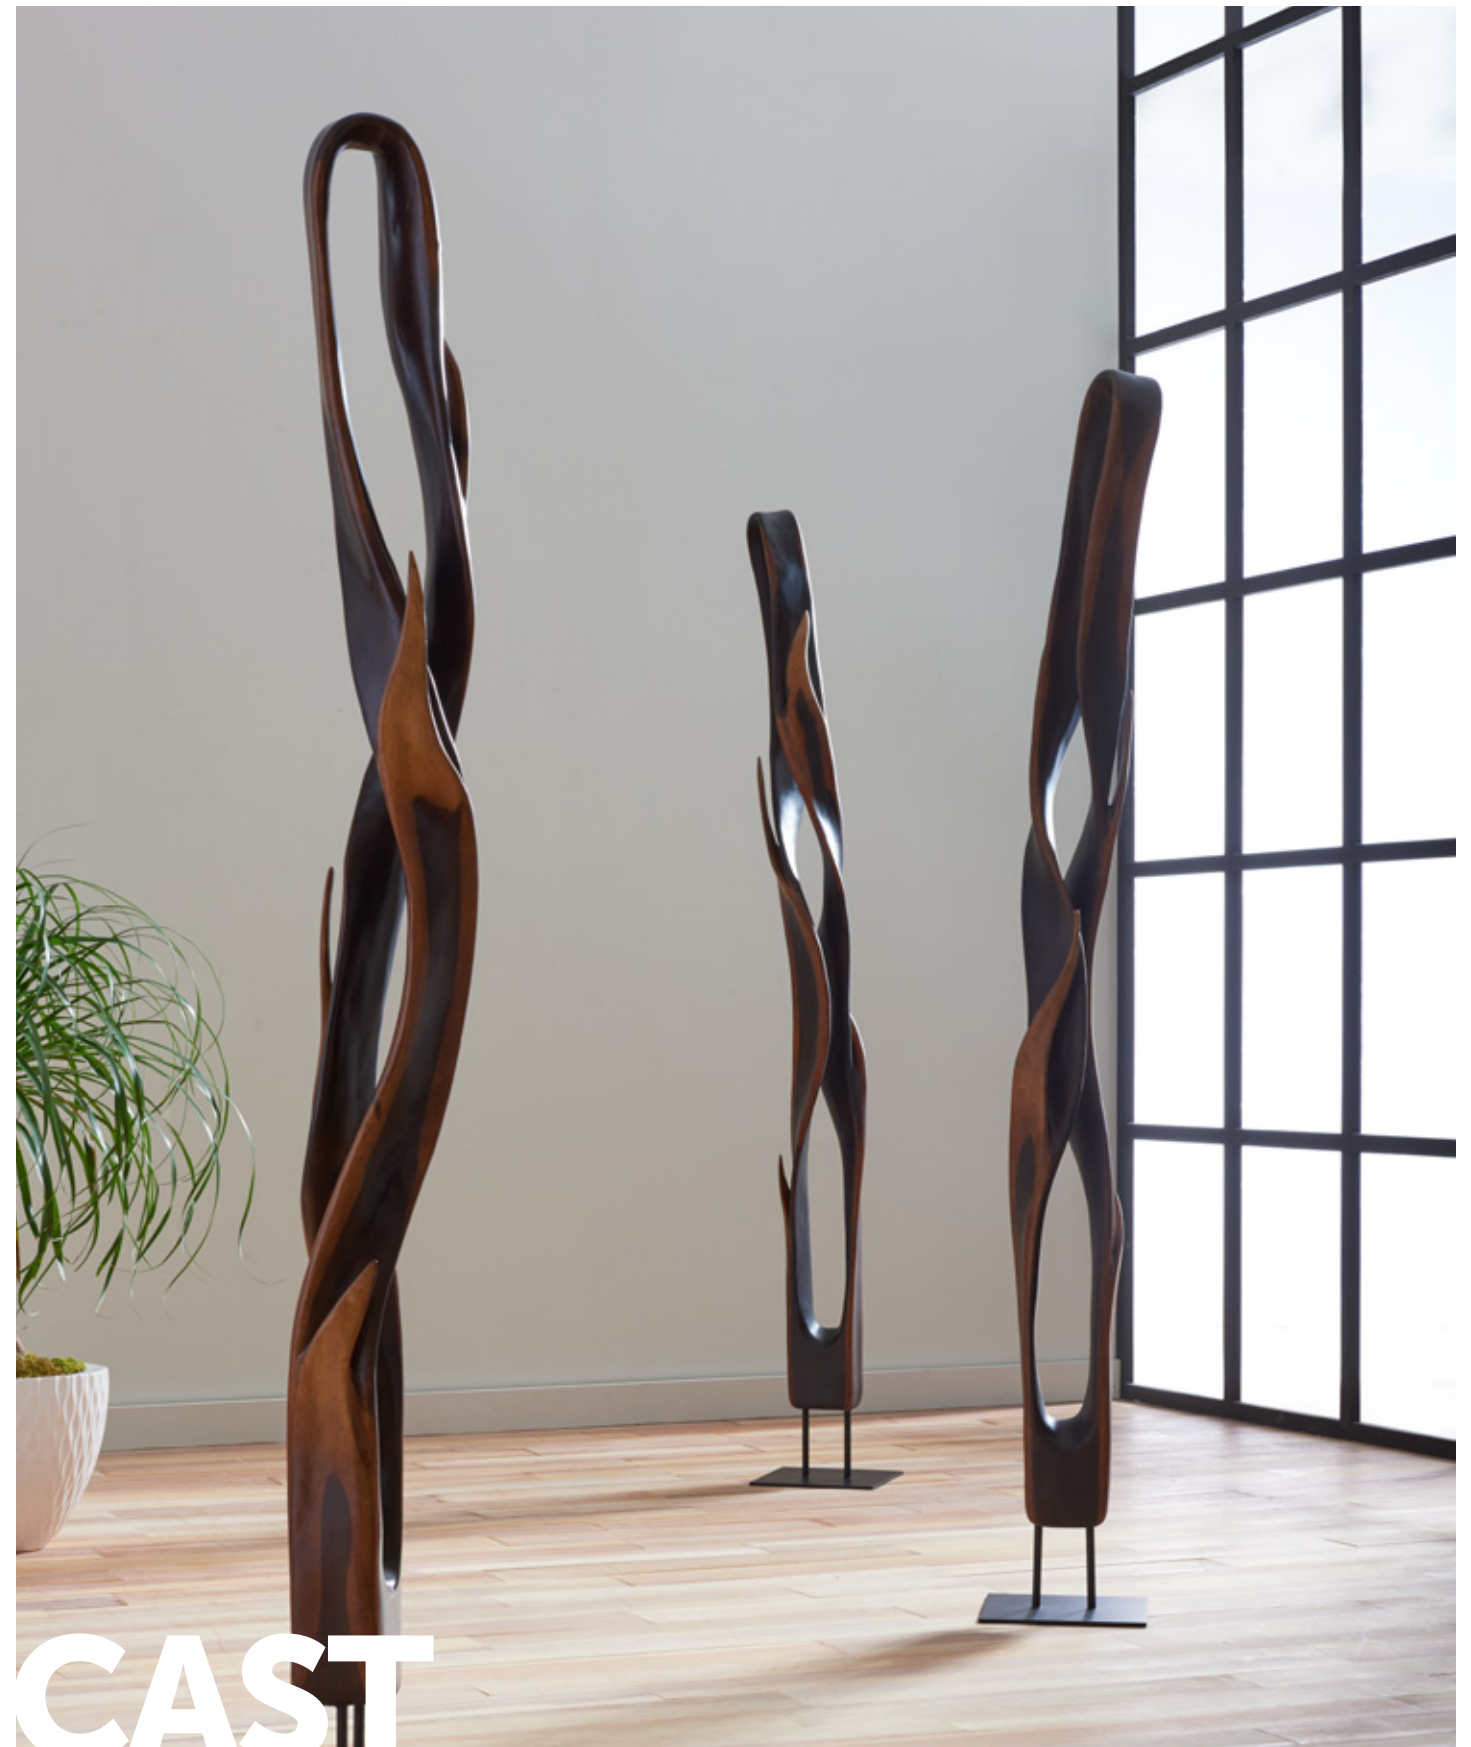

A category we have so much fun with!
Everything we design has to feel like a sculpture.
When it's a table, it needs a flat top surface.
When it's wall art, it needs to be practical to mount.
But true sculpture has no constraints, which really lets us get wild and organic with things. From tabletop to colossal, we've got you covered.

CAST STONE

Inspired by the characteristic vertical walls of basalt mountainsides, our Splinter Stone Collection has quite literally taken form from such locations. We find shards of this hardy stone, cast them in artisan grade resin and mount them to a black metal base. Striking, natural and exclusivity from Phillips
